"NOW" NEVER COMES BACK

"Like the snow falls in the river,
A moment white--then melts forever."

---Robert Burns

Do we ever think about the value of the present? Do we realize that all the joys as well as the frustrations of this school year will soon be gone forever? Now we have them; now we don't. Only memories remain.

In all the one hundred and eighty days of our school year, we are given opportunities to build toward a more prosperous future. Each day adds new memories, both good and bad.

In our classes, we gain knowledge of useful things for later life. Now is the time to reach out and grasp this opportunity that is ours.

In our homerooms, we find friends to enjoy during our school life. In our faculty and administration, we find friends who are willing to guide and help us become more able to meet our responsibilities in the future.

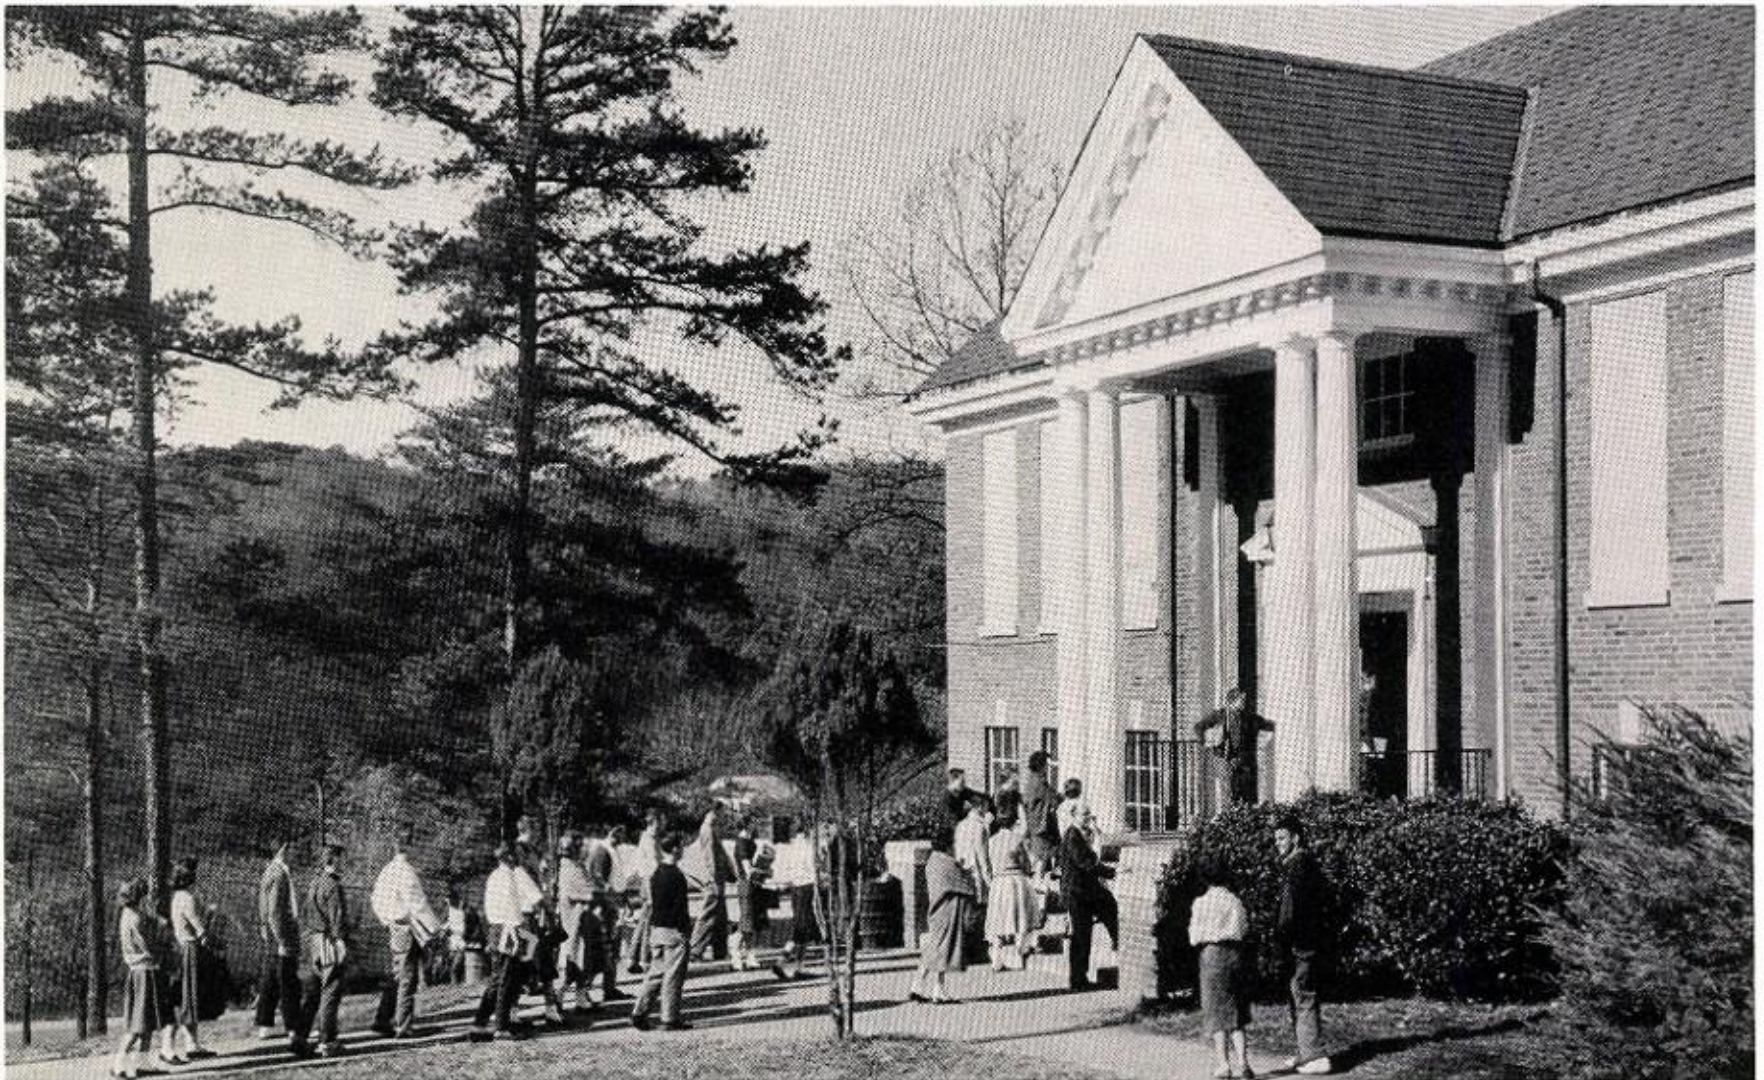

In our organizations, we learn to get along with people, to lead, and to follow. We choose our own particular clubs according to our special interests. Now is the time to enjoy, to find satisfaction in whatever we do.

In our sports activities, we develop physically. Even more important is the fact that we develop mentally. Good sportsmanship and loyalty to the team, whether we win or lose, are lessons we learn now.

Many new faces will replace those whom we now know so vividly. Many activities we accomplished with such care will be replaced with a new pride. In the future we shall engage in similar pursuits, but they will never be the same. New classes, new students, new subjects, and new graduates come with every new school year.

This year's FIELDCREST presents NOW to you. This school year will never come back, but as we look through this book tomorrow, next year, or twenty years hence, NOW can come back in our memories and dreams.

Early morning sees a pageant of passing feet making their way into school to begin the day's studies.

Hearty appetites and jovial conversation take over during lunch hour in the cafeteria.

After "May I have your attention, please," David Akers makes the afternoon announcements over the P. A. System. Mrs. Stultz listens watchfully.

After the day's work is done, tired students wait patiently for the bus to take them home.

WE DEDICATE "NOW" TO YOU...

MR. EDDIE RAKES

To every Senior Class, there is someone who, through his example and service to Fieldale High School, becomes a part of the students' lives. The class of 1961 has found that person to be Mr. Eddie Rakes, coach of the basketball team, assistant principal of the high school, acting principal of the elementary school, former teacher of many of us, and friend to all of us. To you, Mr. Rakes, we dedicate the FIELDCREST. Because of your tremendous influence, we feel that a portion of the life which you now exemplify will be an inspiration to us forever.

Mr. Rakes is surrounded by some of his "little ones" at the elementary school.

ADMINISTRATION AND STAFF ARE GUIDING FORCE

Subtly shaping the course of our high school years are twenty-four men and women who make up our faculty. Along with them, from the administrative standpoint, are the principal, assistant principal, director of instruction, the visiting teacher, and the entire School Board. Other members of the school staff are the school secretary, the cafeteria ladies, five bus drivers, a janitress, and a fireman. All these working together and mindful of the significance of NOW are truly the force which gradually guides us toward a more satisfying life.

Faced with the task of attempting to do something constructive for every student in a system that tries to teach a wide variety of subject matter to all the students, our faculty constantly tries to prepare themselves to meet this tremendous challenge. Four of our teachers have earned Master's Degrees and one is working on her Doctorate.

Many attend summer schools, extension classes, and professional conferences.

An administrative faculty meeting is held on the second Monday of every month to work out difficulties that arise in the normal routine of each school day. On the third and fourth Mondays of each month, group professional faculty meetings are held during which specific phases of the school program are considered and discussed in an effort to improve the situation.

Besides their regular classroom duties, teachers find themselves with many other duties in the school and community. Most teachers are sponsors of one or more of the school clubs; twelve sponsor home-rooms, and all take their turns at bus and hall duty and selling tickets at the ball games. Many aid in community projects and several are Sunday School teachers in their chosen churches.

Doing bus duty, Miss Knight diligently sees that the very last student is safely on the bus.

"Don't stand in the hall" are familiar words from the hall duty teacher, Mrs. Jean Fuller.

ACADEMIC PROGRAM IS COLLEGE PREPARATORY

Mildred Thawley, Jerry Purcell, Audrea Turner, and R. B. Hundley look on attentively as Mary Jane Pickup, Eddie Gibson, Violet Hubbard, David Ader-hold, and Joretta Nester display their projects from Chaucer's England.

The Academic program includes those courses essential as preparation for pursuing work in a college. College entrance requirements vary at different institutions. Each student must determine as soon as possible what college he expects to attend so that his high school courses will meet these requirements.

Required courses for the Academic program are: five units in English, two in lab science, two in mathematics, one in U. S. history, one in government, one in world history, and three years of health and physical education. If a student plans to go into engineering, one year of mechanical drawing is required. He must take five additional courses selected from math, science, and foreign languages. Then he must take four other electives which may be any of the courses offered in the curriculum.

As a part of their study of Western literature, the junior English class enjoys singing "Sweet Betsy from Pike."

CURRICULUM OFFERS FORTY-SIX VARIOUS COURSES

Jonathan Swift once wrote, "When time is once passed, there is no recalling it." So it is in relation to the opportunities that are ours each year of our school life. How we use these years of opportunities will have a profound significance on our lives, for every hour lost now in worth-while endeavor is lost forever.

A part of the philosophy of Fieldale High School is that every young person should have the opportunity to participate in an educational program which will better fit him for life in a complex society. The curriculum of our school is organized in such a way as to provide an opportunity for adequate preparation of those students who plan to enter college and those students who plan immediately to enter the world of work.

The courses are divided into three specific programs: Academic, Vocational, and General. After careful consideration of these programs by the student, in co-operation with the guidance director, school administrators, and with parental understanding and consent, a specific program is selected by the student. This program is followed through the four years of high school; changes may be made with approval of the school authorities and the student's parents.

The school is fully accredited by the Virginia State Department of Education and the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. It is a part of the twelve-year school system.

A total of 46 various courses are offered, many of which are required and others are electives. The courses offered are as follows: five in English and grammar; five in mathematics including arithmetic 8, algebra I and II, plane geometry, and solid geometry-trigonometry; three in science including science 8, biology, and chemistry; five in social studies including history 8, world geography, world history, U. S. history, and American government; six in business including general business, typing I and II, shorthand I and II, and bookkeeping; four in home economics including home economics I, II, III, and IV; four in foreign languages including Latin I and II and Spanish I and II; four in industrial arts including general shop, machine woodwork, mechanical drawing, and advanced drawing; three in music including choral music, band, and music appreciation; three years of health and physical education, and one each of speech, distributive education and journalism.

Mrs. Poston explains the legend of the albatross in "The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" to Paul Jones in a typical English class.

GENERAL PROGRAM IS NON SPECIALIZED COURSE

Spanish students, Shelby Isley, Mary Ann Gusler, and Irene Hedgecock perfect their Spanish by hearing the correct pronunciation of Spanish words under the direction of Mrs. Mitchell.

The General program is the basic high school course. It is for those students who wish a good, practical education rather than the specialized academic or vocational work.

The required courses for the General program are the same as those required for the Academic program. The difference between the two programs lies in the electives which a student must take. He must take four electives following a co-ordinated and sequential pattern of subjects involving math, science, foreign language, and/or vocational subjects. Five other electives must be chosen from any in the curriculum.

Jeanette Setliff improves her articulation in speech class as Miss Knight notes her progress.

VOCATIONAL PROGRAM GIVES PRACTICAL TRAINING

Ballots from the mock election are counted by Carolyn Rakes, Barbara Wyatt, Randy Joyce, David Akers, and David Jones, members of the American government class.

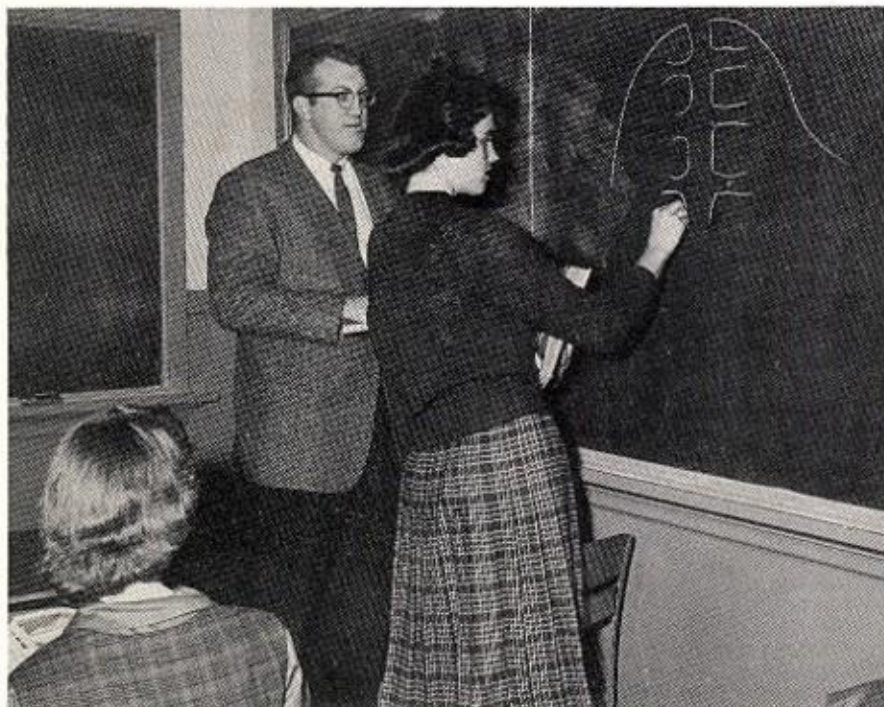

An enlightening report on the ancient Egyptians is given by Jimmy Joyce to the World history class.

The Vocational program provides students with an opportunity to acquaint themselves with the fundamental principles of business, home economics, industrial arts, and distributive education.

The required courses of the Vocational program are the same as those required for the Academic and General. As in the other two programs the difference lies in the electives. The student must choose three or four electives from one of the vocational areas. Also, he must take five or six other courses from any that are offered in the curriculum.

Under the watchful eye of Mr. Cassady, Jackie Fudge diagrams a coal shaft in World geography.

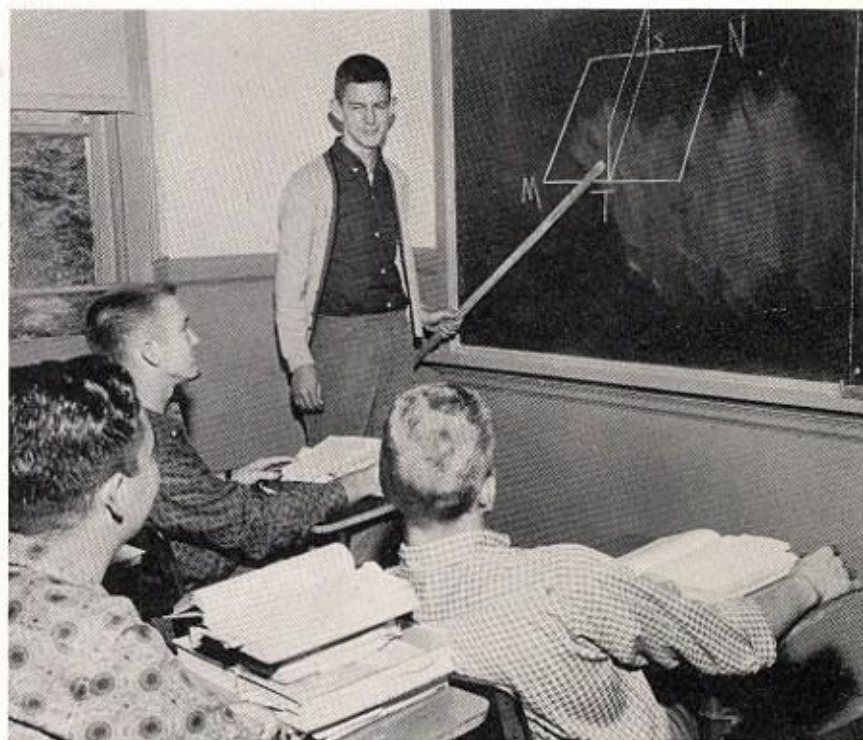

Lewis Eanes, Mary Ann Gusler, Mildred Byrd, and Jimmy Stultz prepare to debate on the presidential candidates, Mr. Nixon and Mr. Kennedy, with Mrs. Mitchell serving as moderator.

SELECTED FEW MAY TAKE ADVANCED SUBJECTS

The principle of percentages is demonstrated by Shirley Bryant and Penny Whitlock as Mr. Smith looks on.

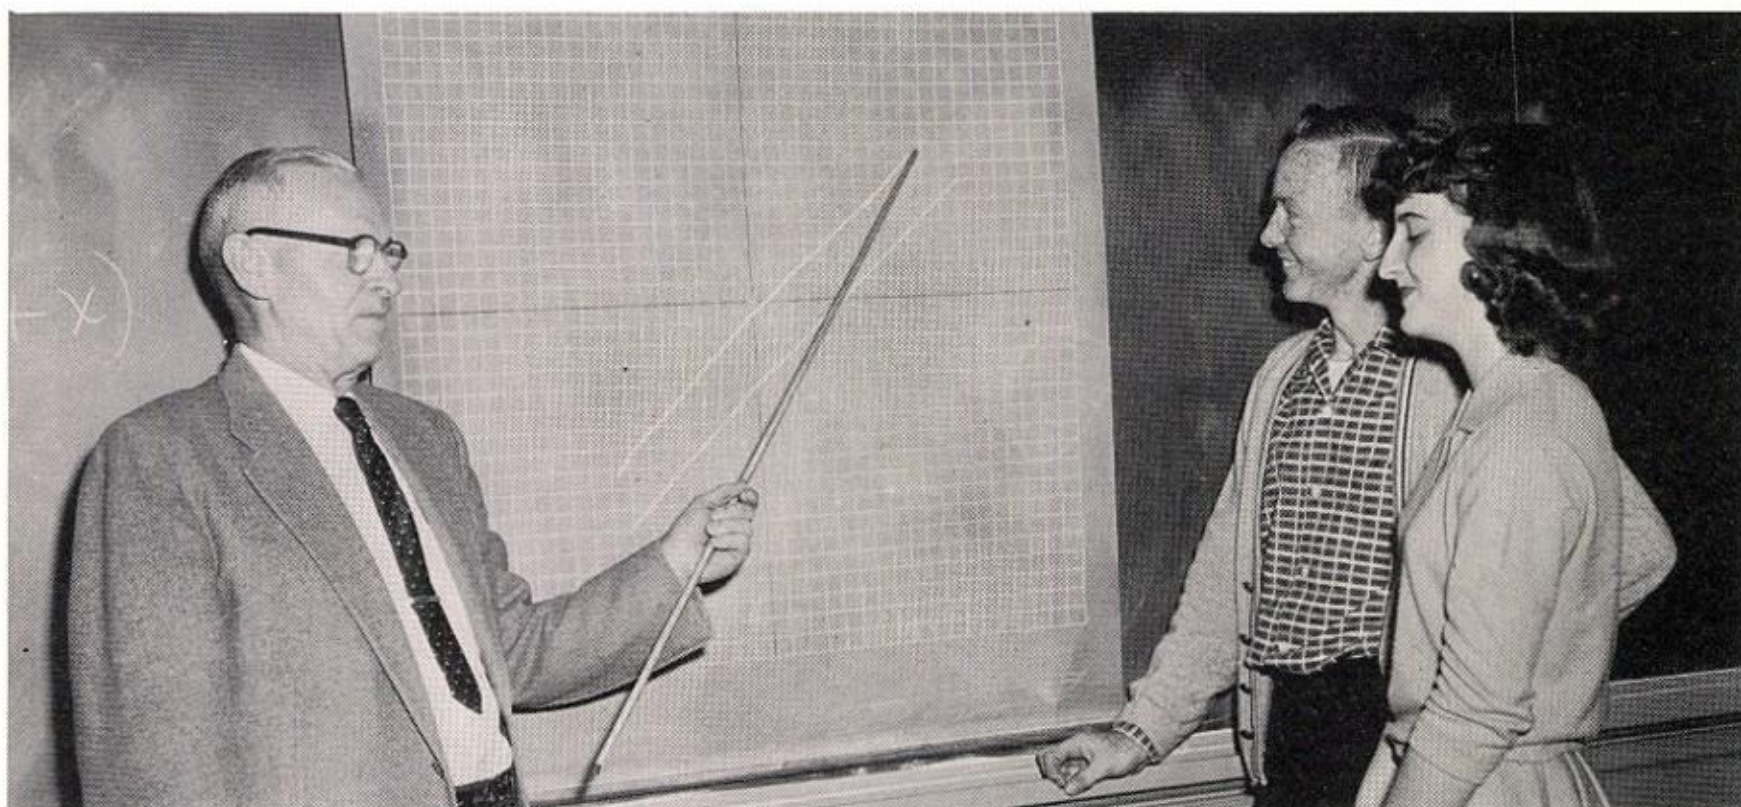

Two intersecting planes are drawn by B. J. Carter in solid geometry.

A few students in the eighth grade are permitted with parental consent to take algebra 9 or math 9 instead of eighth grade arithmetic or take the first year of a foreign language rather than history 8.

The selection of students who are permitted to take this advanced work is based upon such factors as intelligence test scores, reading test scores, achievement test scores, and academic standing. The reason for allowing certain students to take advanced courses in the eighth grade is to make it possible for them to take certain advanced subjects in the twelfth grade.

Mr. Smith explains how to plot a graph to Frankie Barker and Connie Shelton in algebra class.

CHANGE IS MADE IN GRADUATION REQUIREMENTS

With Mrs. Eanes, Teresa Moore and Jerry Mabry learn more about the care and feeding of fish in science class.

Requirements for those students graduating in 1961 and 1962 are 18 credits. When these graduates were eighth graders, credit was not given for eighth grade courses. In 1958, a revision was made of the required credits for graduation; the major change made was that credit would be given for eighth grade subjects and that students graduating in 1963 and after would be required to have 22 1/2 credits. This requirement fulfills those of the State Department of Education and those of Henry County.

In chemistry, Mrs. Taylor explains to Rebecca Prillaman and Terry Britton the combining capacity of chemicals.

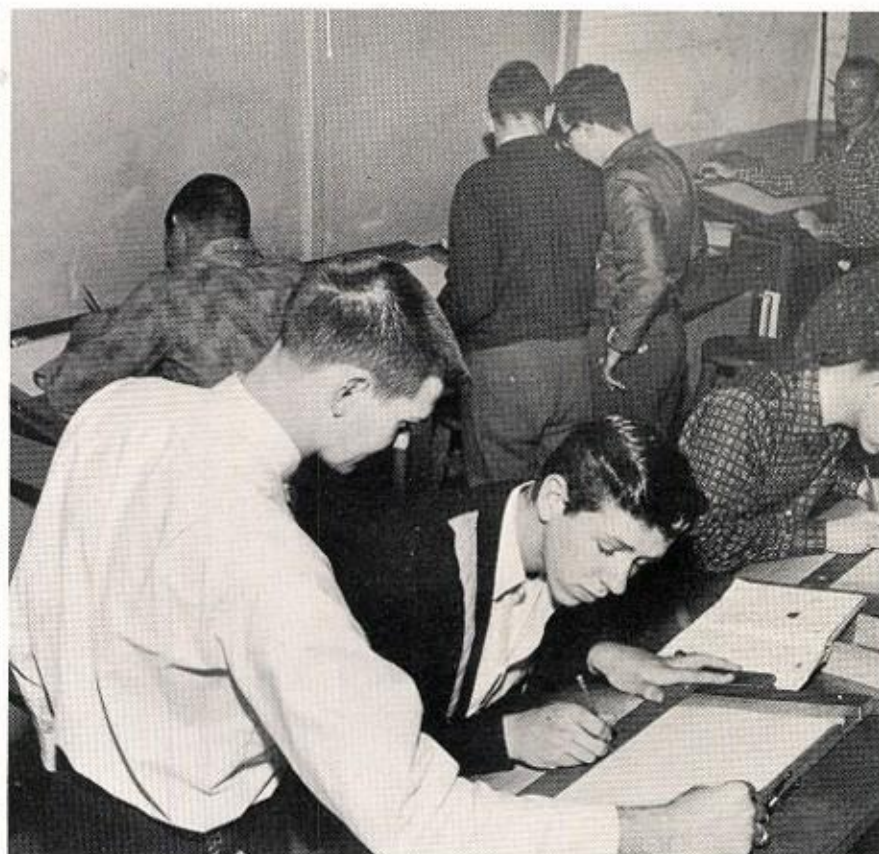

Mrs. Taylor points out the parts of the human brain to Bobbie Martin and Reece Haynes during a biology lesson.

Mr. Merritt aids Coy Via in the completion of his mechanical drawing project.

Under the new requirement system, in order to be classed as a Freshman, a student must have 3 1/2 credits; as a Sophomore, 8; as a Junior, 12 1/2; and as a Senior, 16 1/2.

Under the old system, for those students who were classed as eighth graders before 1958, it is necessary to have 3 1/2 credits to be classed as a Sophomore; 8 as a Junior; and 12 as a Senior.

As the sound of busy activity drifts over the shop, students work diligently to complete their tasks.

ALL MUST TAKE THREE YEARS OF PHYSICAL ED

The parts of an engine are pointed out by driver education instructor, Mr. Diehl, to Bobby Martin.

Carolyn Arnold and Faye Harris demonstrate the correct way to administer artificial respiration.

Health and physical education is required of all students in the eighth, ninth, and tenth grades. Gymnastics, individual and team sports, and health education classes make up the course. In the tenth grade, driver education is also included.

Students are not only trained in the rules of such sports as baseball, basketball, soccer, volleyball, and bowling, but also in the rules of good sportsmanship in play. In these classes outstanding talent is discovered, and these students are encouraged to try out for the varsity teams.

Boys' physical education classes learn better coordination through such sports as basketball.

HOME EC. DEPARTMENT HAS LATEST EQUIPMENT

What's cooking? Something new and delicious promise Shirley Bryant, Aldah Meyers, and Rebecca Prillaman.

Selecting a pattern for that new dress poses a problem for sewing students, Betty Crawford, Mildred Thawley, and Gwen Dalton.

Located in the new addition of the school, the Home Economics Department has for the students' use the latest equipment including two stoves, a refrigerator, a freezer, eight sewing machines, a washer, and a dryer. The classes include training in child care, clothing, family economics, family relations, foods, health, and housing.

Proper rules and the social graces of dining is properly demonstrated by Jo Ann Mullins and Sue Jones.

A new hair-do for Carolyn Arnold, compliments of Elaine Harris, is approved by Mrs. Robertson.

MUSIC COURSES ARE AMONG THE MOST ENJOYABLE

While the music appreciation class listens attentively, Mr. Zimmerman reads the life of Tchaikovsky.

Mr. "Zim" shows Becky Barnard how to get those deep, rich tones from those twisted tubings of brass.

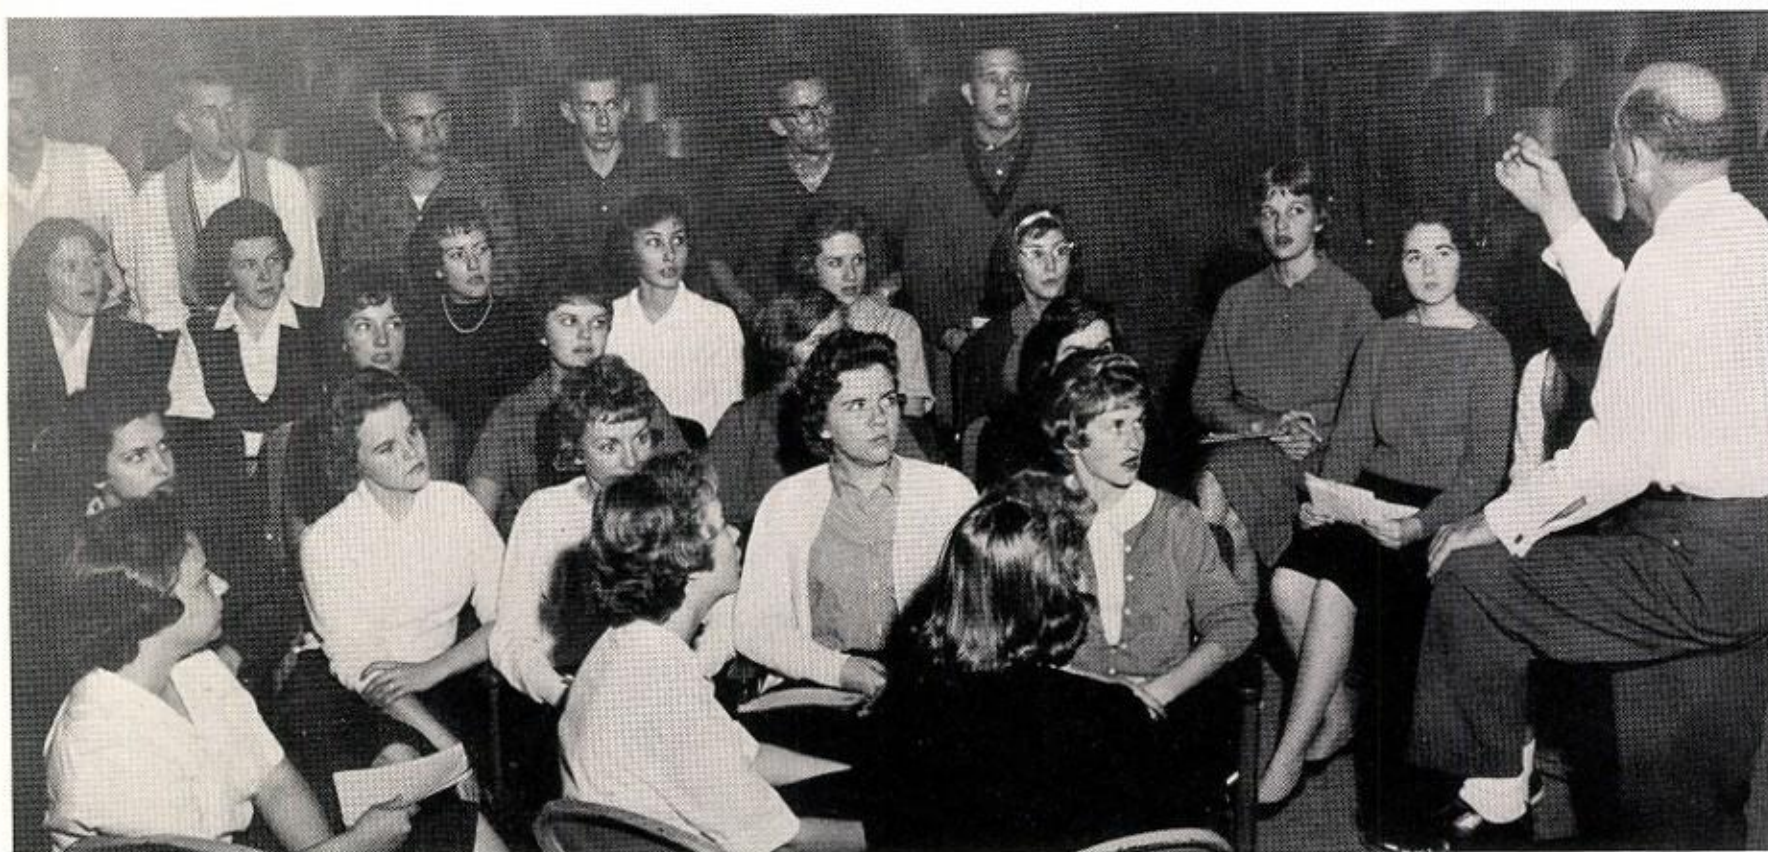

Band is a class that is open to all students. A student may take it all five years of high school and receive one-half credit each year.

Choral music is open only to those students who have an aptitude in singing, and one-half credit is also offered.

Mostly Juniors and Seniors take music appreciation; however, others may take it if their schedule permits. A full credit is given for the course.

Students of the choral music class blend their voices in song under the expert direction of Mr. Zimmerman.

TYPING PROVES TO BE A POPULAR ELECTIVE

Mr. Lucas smilingly gives his class in distributive education some points of good salesmanship.

Each student in Miss Thomas's typing class works diligently to exceed his own record in typing speed.

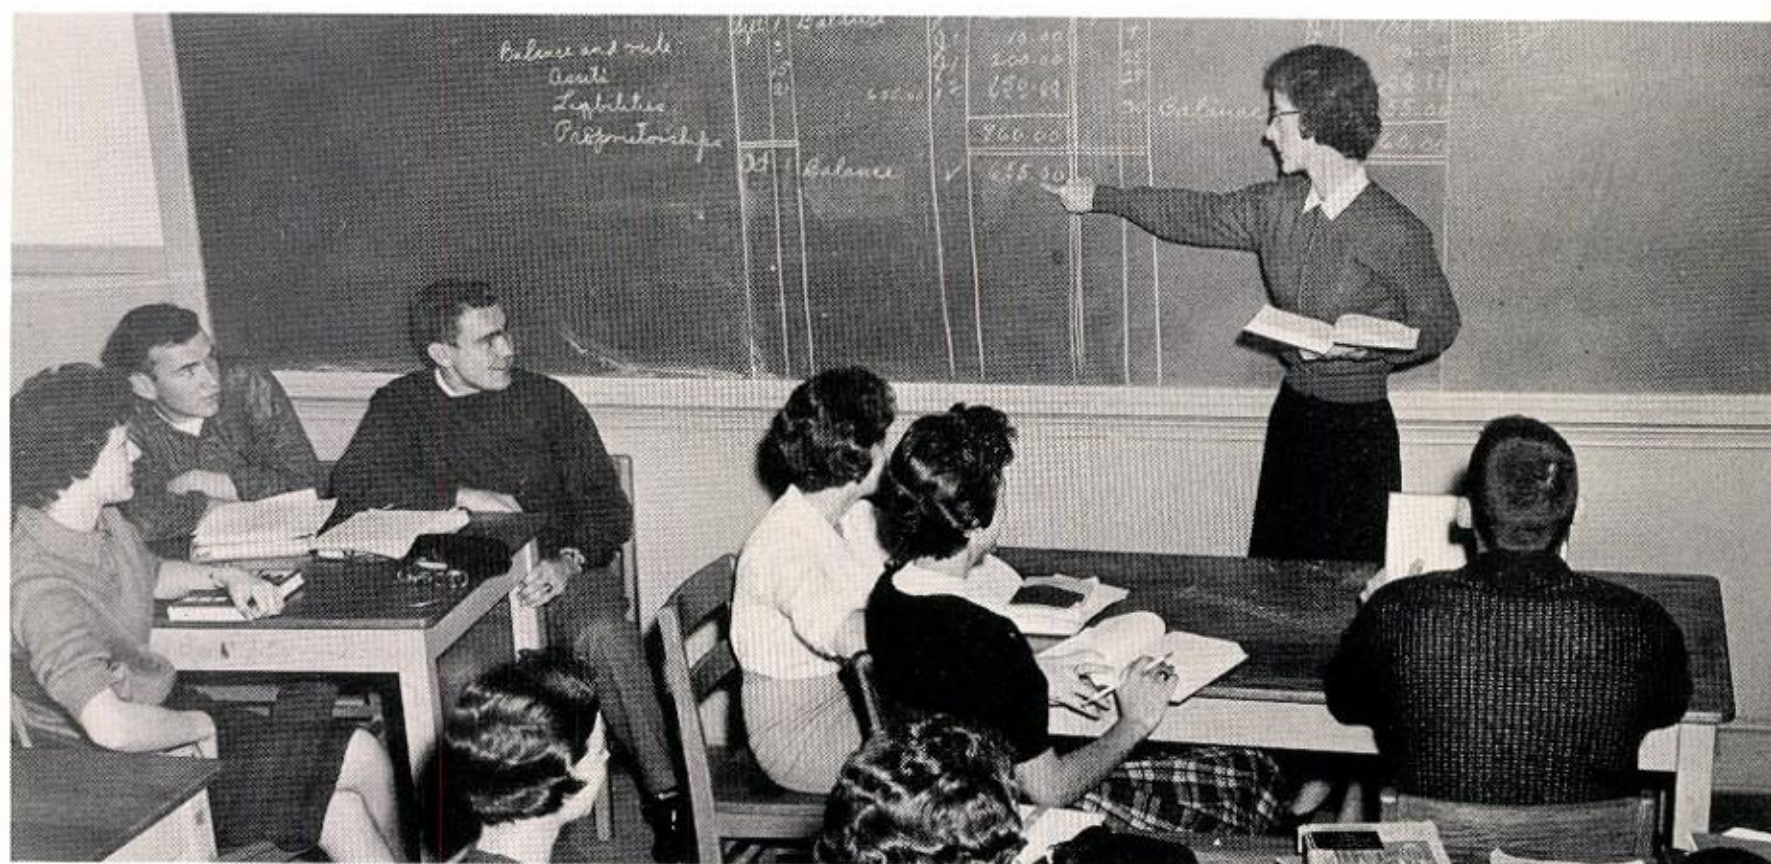

In distributive education, students receive classroom instruction in the mornings at school, and in the afternoons, they go to their respective jobs for on-the-job training. A student earns two credits when taking D.E.

The business course is especially for students interested in doing clerical, bookkeeping, or secretarial work. However, many students take typing as an elective because they want to learn to type for their own use.

In the Business Department there are twenty-four manual typewriters, an electric typewriter, an adding machine, and a mimeograph.

Miss Thompson's bookkeeping class listens with interest to her explanation of ruling and balancing the Cash account.

JOURNALISM CLASS PUBLISHES SCHOOL NEWSPAPER

Exact measurement is necessary when preparing THE SPARK for the publisher as these five know too well-- Jerry Purcell, Mrs. Poston, Mary Ann Gusler, Mona Bishop, and Joy Smith.

The guidance program, as organized in our school, helps the student select his courses and activities in high school, adjust properly to school situations, and plan intelligently for the future. Records are kept in the guidance office giving such information concerning each student as his attendance, health, scholarship, work habits, participation in extra-curricular activities; special aptitudes, interest, and abilities; work experience and vocational preference.

Mrs. Ross, our guidance director, administers standard tests and interprets the results to both the student and parent. She obtains the most recent information available on a variety of occupations and collects the latest college and other specialized school catalogues. She helps students in using these catalogues and in deciding upon colleges and vocations. She makes known to the students scholarship and other student aid information. She distributes college board examination applications and assists the college-bound student in completing these.

The journalism class, which met the fourth period under the direction of Mrs. Poston, studied newspaper fundamentals and published THE SPARK. Daily classwork and countless afternoon and night sessions gave us a school paper we looked forward to eagerly. Six editions were issued during the year.

Columns that made the paper more appealing were: "The Student (or Students) of the Month," a column that honored an outstanding student; "Newsettes," which gave choice bits about people and activities of the school; and "The Inquiring Reporter," which quoted students' opinions concerning interesting topics.

Ralph Gunter receives guidance from Mrs. Ross concerning his future plans.

ALL STUDENTS ARE INSTRUCTED IN LIBRARY USE

Magazines in the Library keep us well informed on current events. Connie Shelton reads about current progress in education.

Movies add interest to class activities. Miss Elrod helps David Akers get the projector ready for a class movie.

Our well-equipped library is open to the students throughout the entire school day. Miss Elrod, the librarian, is on duty a half hour before school and after school for the benefit of those students who want to use the library at these times.

All students are instructed in the use of library materials. Classwork involving the use of the library is given through the year in the different classes giving the students an opportunity for exploring and for leisure reading.

Movies, filmstrips, recordings, and other audio-visual materials are ordered and handled through the library.

In preparation for a class report, Betty Crawford, Glenda Anderson, and Judy Merriman utilize the reference books in the library.

FIELDALE HIGH ENROLLS 445 STUDENTS

In September, four hundred and forty-five students poured into the halls and classrooms of Fieldale High to begin the new school year. This was the largest enrollment that Fieldale had ever had in the history of the school.

The students came not only from Fieldale but from many communities around, which include Pleasant Grove, Villa Heights, Koehler, and Collinsville. Most of the students were transported to school by bus; however, many of them drove their own cars or walked.

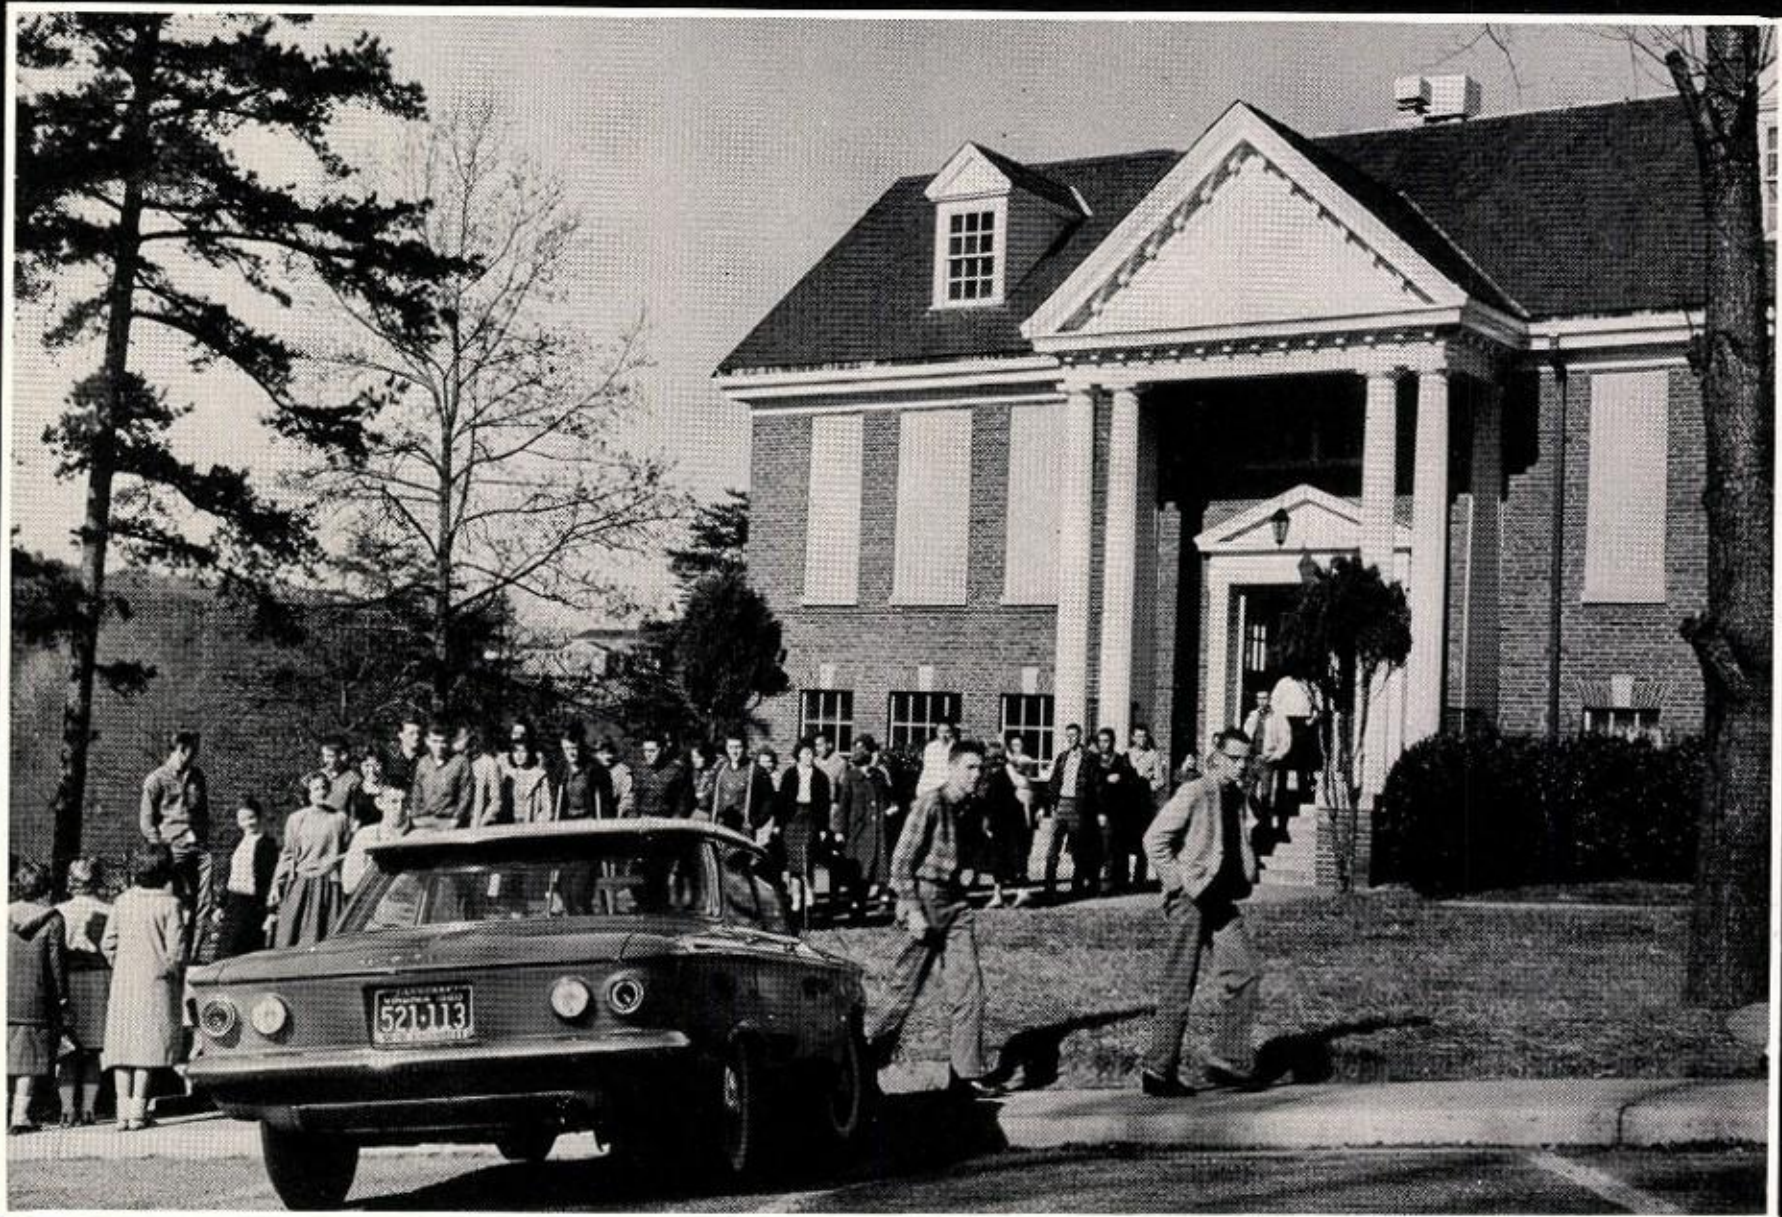

As school began, there was a feeling of excitement. In the back of each student's mind, there was an awareness that this was the time! NOW was the hour! Four hundred and forty-five eager young people --eager because this was the year of graduation; this was the year that the junior was in sight of his goal; the sophomore was an upperclassman; the freshman was just beginning his climb with anticipation; and the eighth grader had gotten to high school at last.

The personality of the school was characterized by an unusual friendliness, an enthusiastic school spirit, and a general feeling of well-being. Fieldale High was a school the students were proud of.

Now, as we look at the familiar faces of those who made up the personality of our school, we are a little sad in knowing that the year is gone but happy in remembering that it was a good one.

Below, students are shown leaving the building during a fire drill. The building is usually evacuated in an orderly manner in less than a minute and a half.

ORGANIZATIONS REPRESENT STUDENT INTERESTS.

At Fieldale High there are a total of sixteen organizations or clubs. Students may join as many as two different ones, and most students belong to at least one. The organizations meet every other Wednesday. On these days, the schedule is divided into seven periods, making time for an activity period of forty minutes.

Certain organizations are closely connected with specific classes in order to further the work done in class. Some of these are Future Business Leaders of America, Distributive Education, Future Homemakers of America, Spanish, and Latin.

Many organizations are chiefly service clubs for the betterment of the school or community; such as, Student Co-operative Association, Library, Firefighters, and Safety Patrol.

All organizations offer opportunities for the development of leadership, initiative, and dependability. All provide opportunities for students to make friends and to learn to get along with people. Each organization is responsible for displaying a bulletin board in the main hall for a week and for giving one assembly program during the year.

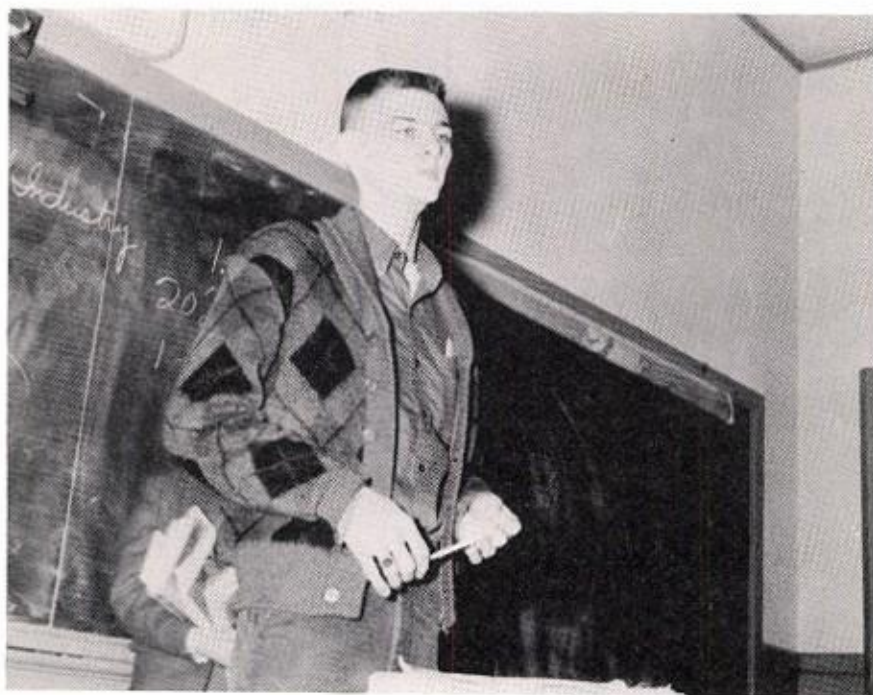

In the club period, programs are given and projects are initiated. All meetings are conducted according to parliamentary procedure. In order to justify its existence, a club must be organized with definite objectives which will provide educational experiences for those students who participate in its activities. An evaluation of each organization and its activities is made at the end of each year. In order to continue the next year, the club's activities must prove to be worthwhile.

This year, the Student Co-operative Association makes an award to the "Club of the Month." Here, Marie Stegall, Marie Lawrence, Eugenia Barnes, David Jones, and Ronnie Baldwin meet to discuss the recipient of the award.

REPRESENT EVERY HIGH SCHOOL ACTIVITY

S. C. A. president, Randy Joyce, calls the meeting to order.

Faye Harris places her suggestion in the S.C.A. suggestion box in the library.

The Student Co-operative Association was the strongest and most active organization in the school.

One person from each homeroom and organization was elected to the council on the basis of leadership, scholarship, and integrity. Each member, when elected to represent his organization or homeroom, took upon himself the responsibility to do the best of his ability to make the school a better place to attend.

The S. C. A. sponsored the White Christmas Cheer. The students marched on stage and placed their contribution under the Christmas tree. Later the gifts were carried to the Christmas Cheer Headquarters in Martinsville.

The organization had a suggestion box in the library and encouraged the entire student body to make suggestions for improving the school.

The S. C. A. was in charge of the Lost and Found Department. Whenever an article was lost, found, and put in the Lost and Found Locker, the loser could obtain his article by paying a small fee to the S. C. A.

Preparations for clean-up day were made by the S. C. A. Each homeroom was provided with cleaning materials for the necessary cleaning tasks.

The S. C. A. kept a scrapbook of all school activities which included clippings and pictures from local papers about scholastic and athletic achievements.

David Jones played a big part in getting the Club of the Month organized and functioning. Devotions were given every Monday morning over the Public Address System under the sponsorship of the S. C. A. Judy Ramsey was chairman of this activity.

Mary Jane Lawless adds articles to the Lost and Found Locker.

In November word was received that the Columbia Scholastic Press Association had given a First Place Award to the FIELDCREST. This gave the staff's morale an extra boost, especially those old members who had worked on last year's book. The 1959 book also won a First Place Award last spring at the Southern Interscholastic Press Association Convention held at Washington and Lee University.

Staff meetings were held on Wednesday nights. Even though plans and sections had been well organized, the members had to meet practically every night from the first through the fifteenth of February frantically trying to beat the deadline.

The book was divided into sections. Members were responsible for complete sections -- for laying out the sections, identifying pictures, writing copy, and preparing the dummy. Individual pictures were taken in September and group pictures in November. The staff photographers were busy all through the year getting the pictures of current happenings.

The Business Manager and his staff worked from February until May selling subscriptions. Three hundred and twenty-five copies were sold, the most that has ever been sold. Ads were sold early in the fall to the local merchants and to those surrounding communities, making a total of thirty-six pages. This number topped all previous records.

The staff is grateful to the faculty and students for the fine co-operation given them in all their efforts, without which their task would have been an unpleasant one. If this FIELDCREST serves as a record of the 1960-61 school year and brings back happy memories, then we will feel a sense of satisfaction in knowing that we have accomplished our intentions.

Miss Thompson, Mrs. Poston, Barbara Chard, and Mary Jane Pickup take time out to pose between sessions at the Southern Interscholastic Press Association Convention.

Selda Daniel, Aldah Myers, and Mary Jane Lawless suddenly get a good idea while working on the yearbook.

A new column was added this year called "We Honor These." In each issue a boy and girl were honored for outstanding accomplishments. Each class was represented in this column.

Joy Smith, the feature editor, was chosen by Mrs. Poston to attend a press seminar at Washington & Lee University. Joy and David Jones were outstanding writers for the newspaper. David attended the Virginia High School Forum held at Jefferson High School in Roanoke.

FUTURE TEACHERS ATTEND TEA AT LYNWOOD

The members of the Future Teachers of America are students who plan to become teachers. These students worked toward developing characteristics of leadership, scholarship, and service so that they can better meet the challenge of teaching when they become qualified teachers.

This past year the Fieldale Chapter obtained a seal for the Chapter which showed it was in good standing for the 1960-61 year. Each club meeting was carried out using the best parliamentary procedure. The members had many discussions on the Teacher's Code of Ethics. The Chapter sponsored an assembly program and also took part in keeping the hall bulletin board attractive.

The members attended a tea at the Lynwood Club given by the Henry County Woman's Club in honor of college personnel and Future Teachers of America students.

As a service project, they washed the boards free of charge.

Fieldcrest Mills invited the Future Business Leaders of America to come and tour the offices. Each member who went on the tour came back with a better understanding of what office work is actually like.

Ellen Stone

"Toward New Horizons" is the motto of the Future Homemakers of America. The thirty girls in this chapter learned to work together and co-operate with each other by actually putting into practice what they learned.

One of the main projects was the adoption of two "Little Sisters" from the elementary school. At various times in the year, they gave the "little sisters" gifts or had a party in their honor. Barbara Wyatt was very active in helping carry out the "Little Sister" project.

As a part of National Future Homemakers of America Week, the club held a Miss F. H. A. contest, served favors to the teachers, and publicized F. H. A. Week through the bulletin board and by giving an assembly program.

The main money-raising project of the club for the year was the selling of key chains. Nancy Tuttle, selling eighty chains, topped everybody else in key-chain sales.

The F. H. A. replaced the broken mirror in the girls' rest room. Margie Hairfield was responsible for obtaining the mirror.

The club was hostess in April to the Philpott Federation. Barbara Wyatt was a past song leader of the Federation and Marie Shelton was a past historian.

The Spanish Club had an unusual assembly program portraying life and customs in Mexico. During the same week, the club was in charge of the bulletin board in the main hall. The board was gaily decorated with Spanish souvenirs which Mrs. Mitchell obtained during her numerous visits to Mexico.

All the students of the Spanish club especially enjoyed the wonderful Mexican meals that Mrs. Mitchell prepared and served at her home. After the meals they enjoyed dancing to Mexican music.

Violet Hubbard won seventh in the State Competition Spanish Tournament. The first place winner won by only five points over Violet's score.

POPULAR MUSIC STUDY CLUB HAS 130 MEMBERS

The fact that the Music Study Club was composed of one hundred and thirty members of the student body illustrated the interest and enthusiasm in music displayed by students of the school.

The programs were given by volunteer members of the group. During one club period, Lyn Joyce gave a very interesting explanation of the modern period of music. Ronnie Setliff set the scene for the Christmas spirit and the carols that are sung at this season of the year. During another club meeting, Ronnie Setliff illustrated the "Swing Era" by playing Benny Goodman and Glenn Miller records and giving a prepared report on Benny Goodman's era.

ABOUT 100 STUDENTS PARTICIPATE IN SPORTS

A part of NOW has ticked away in moments of suspense at sports activities. From November to February, approximately seventy-five students participated in our basketball team. With almost daily practice, the teams exercised to keep in good physical condition. Basic skills in shooting, perfection of passing for teamwork, and various plays were continuously practiced. Physical stamina and strength were some of the rewards of basketball.

Of more importance, members of the team learned to work together. Games were not won by one player or by five individual players, but by the complete team through teamwork and unselfishness. This teamwork learned will be applied in later life in various occupations.

From March to May, the baseball team of approximately thirty boys practiced with earnestness in hopes of entering the District Championship. Through this participation, other physical skills were developed, but the basic facts of teamwork and hard work still applied.

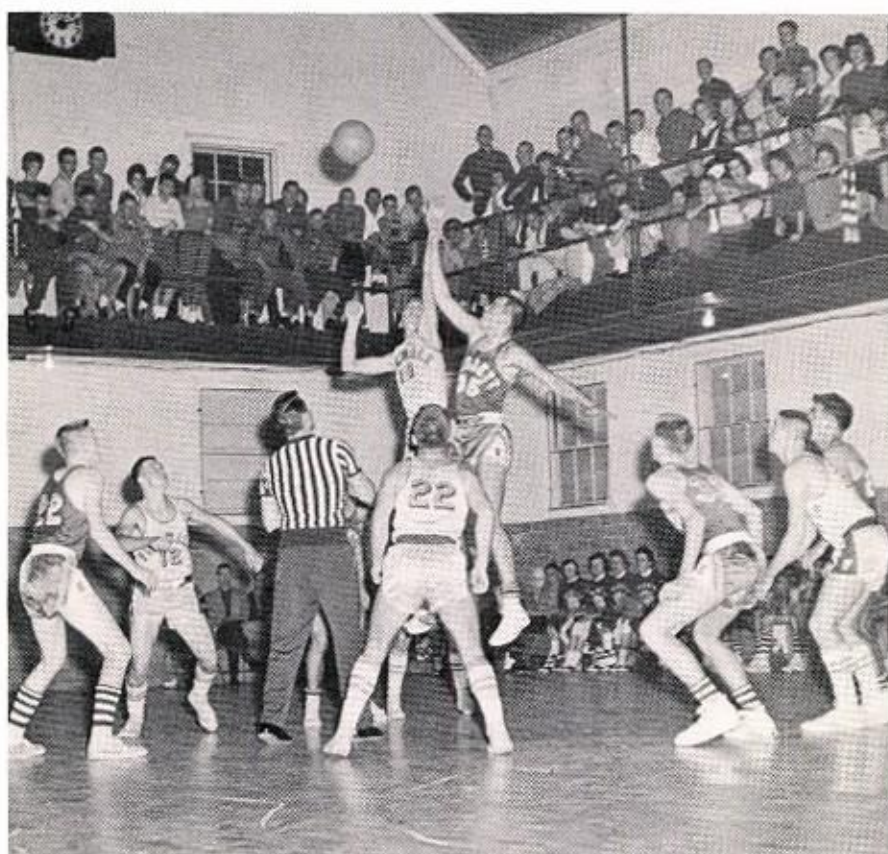

Spectators, as well as team members, reaped from the harvest of good sportsmanship. For this, Fieldale High is noted. Truly, "It is not whether you win or lose, but how you play the game."

Picturing our various sports are, left to right, B. J. Carter as he goes in for a layup, Donna Clark as she dribbles down court, and Eddie Gibson as he prepares to hit a homer.

The Cardinals of George Washington High spoiled the Homecoming at Fieldale. They led by only 4 points at the half, but their superior height proved too much for the Blue Devils in the second half. Eddie Gibson and B. J. Carter led the Blue Devils cause with 22 and 21 points respectively.

Fieldale 41 - Franklin 36 January 20

The Blue Devilettes triumphed again over the Franklin girls. Many people have said that girls could not successfully use a man-to-man defense, but the Fieldale girls proved differently. Warming up in the third quarter, guards Barnard, Clark, and Daniel allowed only 4 points to be scored. Elva Adkins and Jean Plaster were tied for high score honors with 17 points each.

The J. V. Girls are a spirited little group, too. They will prove to be assets to the future varsity teams.

my Gilbert. Standing: Jerry Mabrey, manager; Frank Lucas, Aubrey Price, Wayne Joyce, Wayne Fulcher, Lloyd Brammer, Ray Young, and Coach Jerry Slaughter.

The 1960 Fieldale Blue Devils baseball team had a fairly successful season, winning four games and losing six. The Blue Devils exchanged wins with four of their opponents: Martinsville, Franklin County, Bassett, and Drewry Mason. The only double defeat laid upon the Devils was by Critz.

R. B. Hundley and Bill Morton were the most successful hurlers for the Devils. R. B. cashed in for one victory and Bill was credited with three. These two pitchers hurled good ball for the Devils throughout the year.

In the hitting department, Eddie Gibson led the team in hitting with a batting average of .386, followed closely by Ronnie Setliff whose average was .333.

OPENING DAY IS ONE OF EAGER EXPECTATIONS

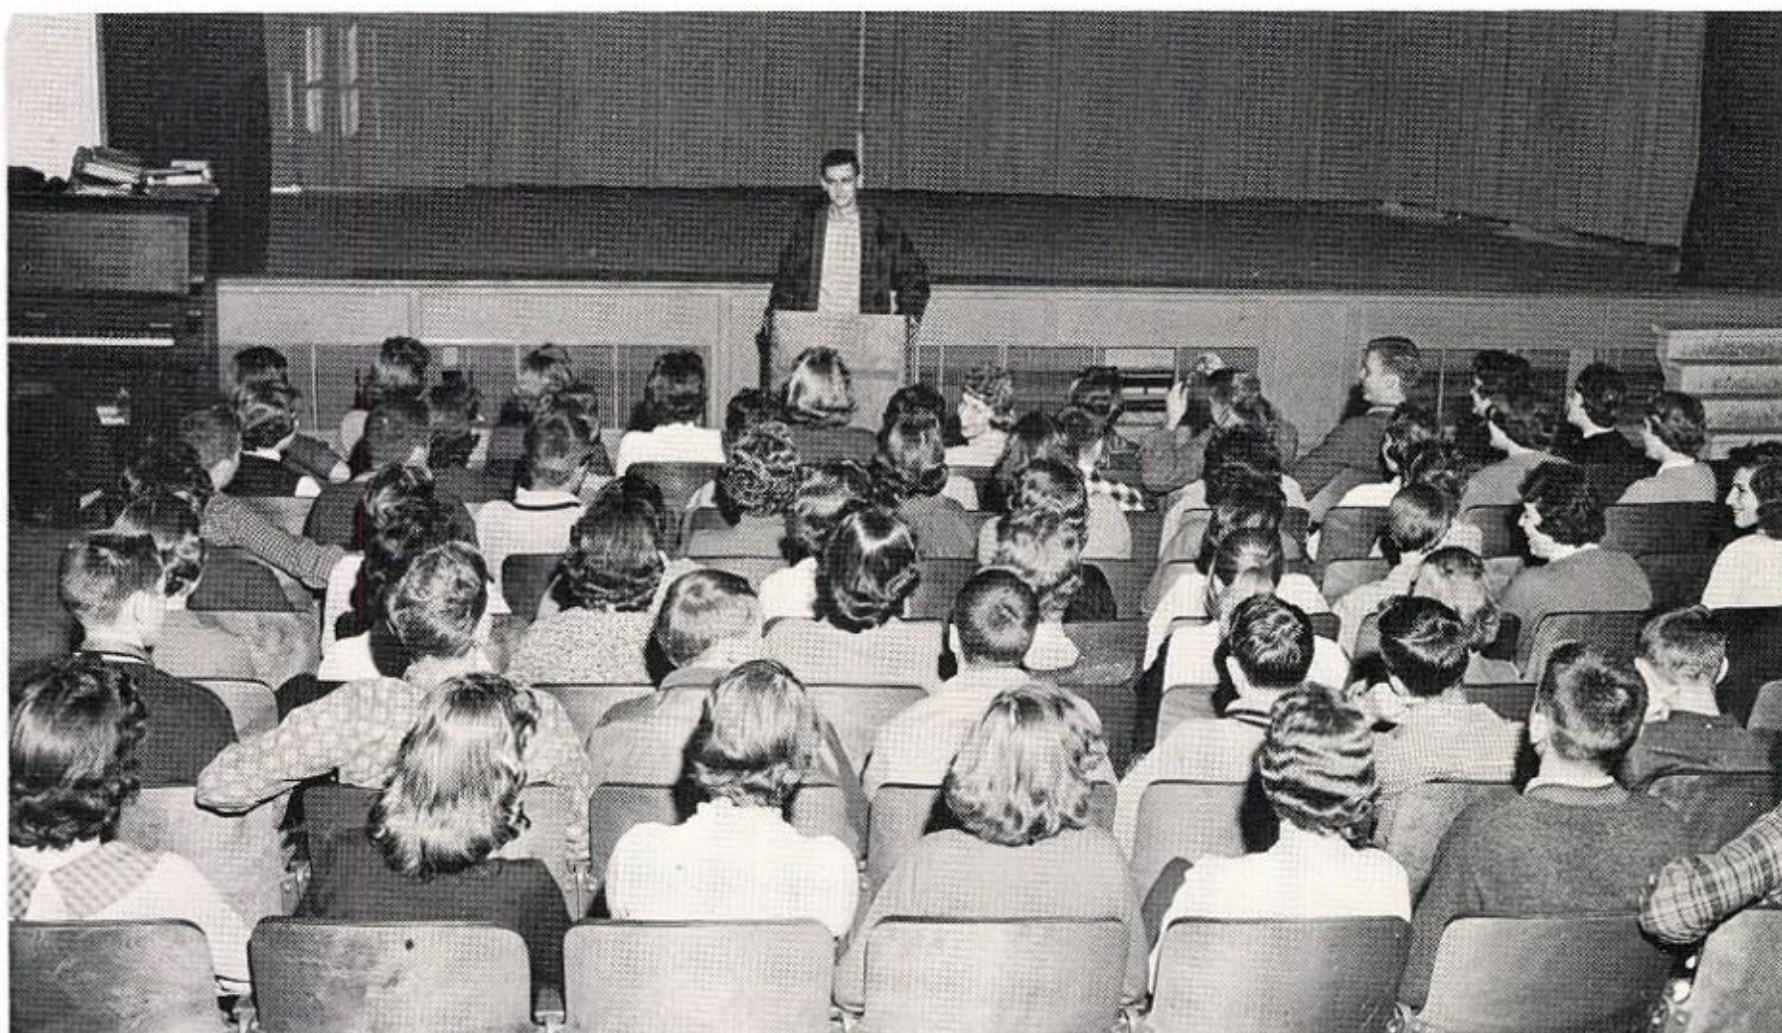

On the opening day of school, Mr. Iler welcomes the old and new students to F. H. S.

As the doors of Fieldale High School opened in September for another season, our principal, Mr. Iler, and student council president, Randy Joyce, greeted the student body and faculty with words of welcome.

This year our enrollment was increased by a large number of eighth graders who took part in many activities of our school life.

With a promising and capable faculty, we began to live this school year in hopes of gaining knowledge not only from books but also from many other experiences. We looked forward to the year with great expectations of continuing old friendships and making acquaintances with new students.

Randy Joyce, the S. C. A. president, addresses the student body and faculty on the first day of school.

FEATURES OF YEAR ARE WELL REMEMBERED EVENTS

From the beginning of school, one event after another burst upon us in rapid sequence. The events not only included working and learning together, as pictured on the preceding pages, but laughing and playing together.

We have recorded in this section outstanding events of the year. It was felt that recognition for achievement should be given to whom it was due. Fieldale High School certainly always has its just share of beauty, talent, personality, and scholarship. Therefore, the FIELDCREST in this section has honored those who received awards, also.

No student knew who the recipients of these awards were until May, immediately before the FIELDCREST was to be distributed. During the awards program, copies of the FIELDCREST were presented to these students first in order to further honor them for their accomplishments.

As we finger through these pages, we may linger on one special page. For there we may live once more a happy moment of the by-gone year. Whether it was the very first opening assembly in the auditorium, the harvest festival, the beauty pageant, the banquet and prom, awards day, or the night of graduation, we remember it all. It was ours--a time of enjoying life to the fullest, a time we never had before and shall never have again.

Highlighting the year was the long-awaited and festive junior-senior banquet and prom held at the Lynwood Club. With their backs to the camera are, left to right: Joy Smith and Iva Jarrett. Across the

WITH FALL COMES BLOODMOBILE AND TESTS

The senior class of Fieldale High School sponsored the bloodmobile. Our students combined their efforts with Fieldcrest Mill's in an attempt to serve the County by obtaining blood donors from the surrounding communities. Several of our own students, who were already eighteen years of age, gave blood. We were very proud that we exceeded our quota. The blood was supplied to the blood bank of the Roanoke District.

Our community physician, Dr. G. W. Curwen, gives Frank Bossart his okay before Frank donates his pint of blood.

In late September, Fieldale students took three tests: Schools and Colleges Aptitude Test (SCAT), Sequential Test of Educational Progress (STEP), and the Differential Aptitude Test (DAT). The members of the ninth, tenth, and eleventh grades took the SCAT and STEP; and the eighth graders, the DAT.

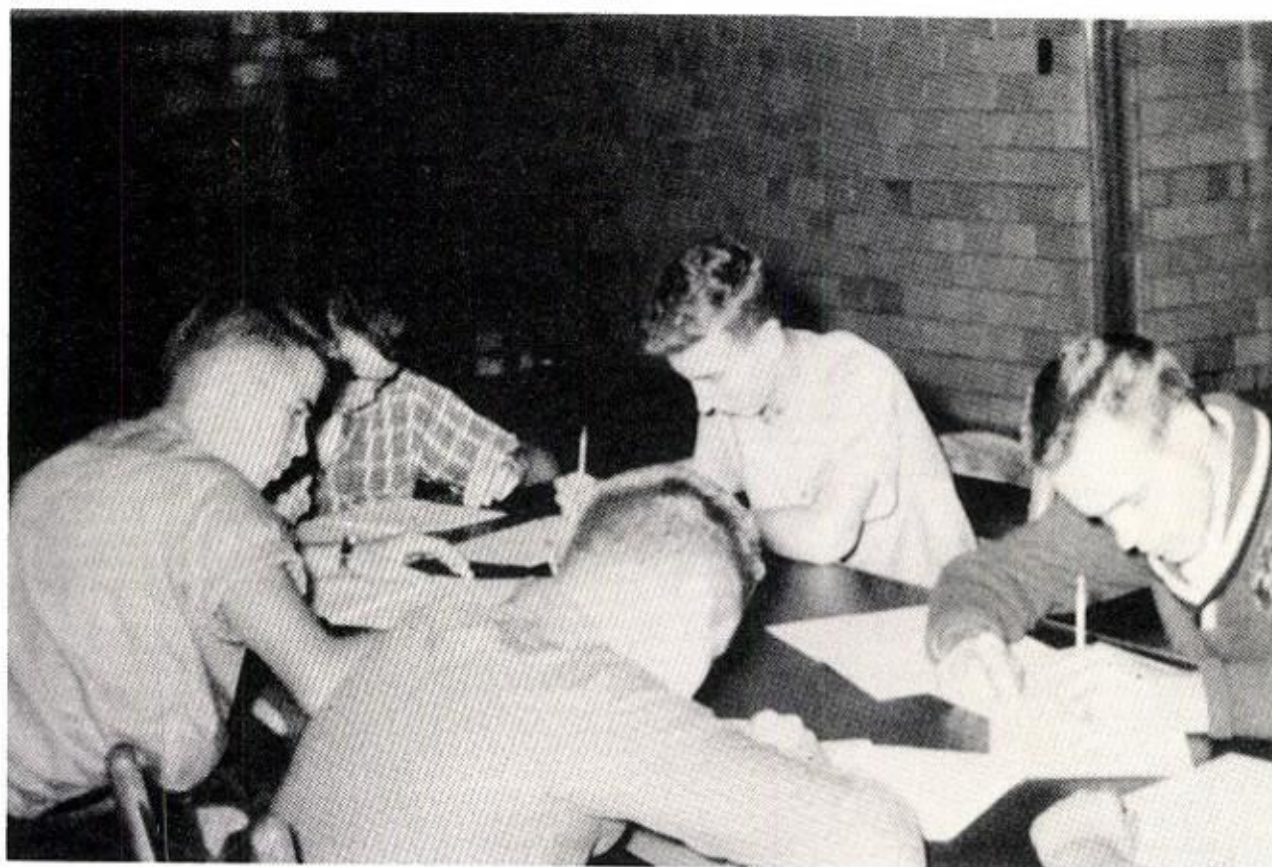

SCAT tests measure a person's ability to solve problems of a mathematical nature, to give meanings of words, and to understand sentences.

The STEP tests include math, science, social studies, reading, listening, and writing. These tests measure how well a person is able to use what he has learned and not what he remembers.

DAT includes verbal reasoning, abstract reasoning, language including spelling and sentences, clerical speed and accuracy, mechanical reasoning, and space relations.

Concentrating to make their best scores, Wayne Lackey, Eric Tipton, Earnest Edwards, Ralph Turner, and Larry Sharpe struggle through the SCAT test.

HARVEST QUEEN AND POMPON GIRLS ARE CHOSEN

B-Anne Merriman
Harvest Queen, 1960

The Harvest Festival of Fieldale was the most colorful affair during the entire autumn season. The festival was sponsored by the P. T. A. and was held in the cafeteria. Members of the organization, the faculties of the elementary and high school, and the students all combined their efforts to provide entertainment for several hundred people.

Various concessions were held including bake sales, cake walks, the country store, dancing, fishing, bingo, bobbing for apples, rummage sales, movies, and other games suitable for the occasion.

The main feature of the evening was the crowning of B-Anne Merriman as Harvest Queen by the assistant principal, Mr. Eddie Rakes.

The high school band had an added attraction of sixteen high-stepping girls who led the band on all occasions. The director, Mr. Paul Zimmerman, chose as finalists those girls who had poise, marching ability, nice appearance, and an ability to get along with others. Best in the County, our Pompon girls

With loud noises and shouting, Fiel-dale pep rallies, which were held in the auditorium, created tense excitement and enthusiasm before the games. Our cheerleaders introduced old familiar cheers and gay new ones. Students learned the most recent ones so as to be ready on the night of the big game.

Now, as we look back, we remember our pep rallies as one of the most exciting activities in our school.

Dressed in their Columbia blue sweaters and white skirts, the cheerleaders stand ready to lead the students.

"F - I - E - L - D - A - L - E, Hey!" is the cheer of the moment.

ENTIRE STUDENT BODY ENJOYS INITIATIONS

As a part of "Rat Week," Fran Dalton, a new Beta Club member, carries Eddie Gibson's books to his next class.

To show good sportsmanship, Mary Jane Lawless, Mary Ann Gusler, and Margie Barnard, model their costumes for Beta initiation.

Under the pretense of misbehavior in assembly, seventeen members from the junior and senior classes were ordered by Mr. Iler to march upon the stage where they were surprised to learn that they had been accepted as new Beta members. This shock was followed by an "air raid command" on the following Friday and Monday after assembly. This part of the humorous initiation required the new members to solemnly drop their books and jump into burlap sacks. On these days, oddly dressed characters appeared in the halls of F.H.S. The girls wore simulated freckles, pig-tails, and were attired in knee-length dresses. Overalls, straw hats, and tennis shoes without socks completed the outfits for the boys. The initiation was most enjoyable for the entire student body.

As a continuation of the fun, the formal initiations were held in the Home Economics Department. Among the tasks they had to perform were the obstacle course, interrogation, and the three-legged race. The mischievous new members were forced to go through the "belt line" to meet the horror of David Jones's unmerciful hand. At the conclusion of the activities, refreshments were served after which each went his way feeling very tired, very happy, and most of all very honored.

To be accepted into the Dramatic Club, the candidates had to learn all the parts of the stage and be able to carry on an oral discussion about themselves. They also had to write a theme on some phase of dramatics and go through the questioning of an interrogation room composed of Miss Knight and old members.

Those who succeeded in accomplishing these assignments were admitted into the club.

Screening new Dramatic Club members becomes the duty of Patty Gilbert, Janice Joyce, Gale Walker, Shelby Isley, Mike Hundley, and Carolyn Lawson.

Spirits soared high at Fieldale during the December 17, 1960, homecoming game when the Blue Devils played host to George Washington of Danville.

During the preliminary, the Blue Imps were forced to bow to the George Washington J. V.'s after a courageous struggle.

Norma Jean Plaster reigned as homecoming queen which highlighted the evening, with her coronation taking place between games. The queen's princesses were Elva Adkins and Barbara Wyatt; and her attendants were Mildred Byrd, Donna Stegall, Connie Shelton, and Becky Barnard.

In the varsity game, our boys fought hard, but the Danville Cardinals took the lead with a final score of 93-69.

After the game, the Beta Club sponsored the annual homecoming dance held in the gym.

JOY SMITH IS CHRISTMAS PAGEANT MODONNA

Joy Smith
Madonna
Selected by the Student Body

The Christmas assembly brought out the theme "White Christmas" in a most inspirational and thought-provoking way. The members of the Dramatic Club presented the story of the Nativity. The cast consisted of B. J. Carter, Gale Walker, R. B. Hundley, Janice Joyce, Melanie Daniel, Ronnie Baldwin, George Koger, and J. R. May. The honor of being the Madonna was bestowed upon Joy Smith, a very deserving senior girl.

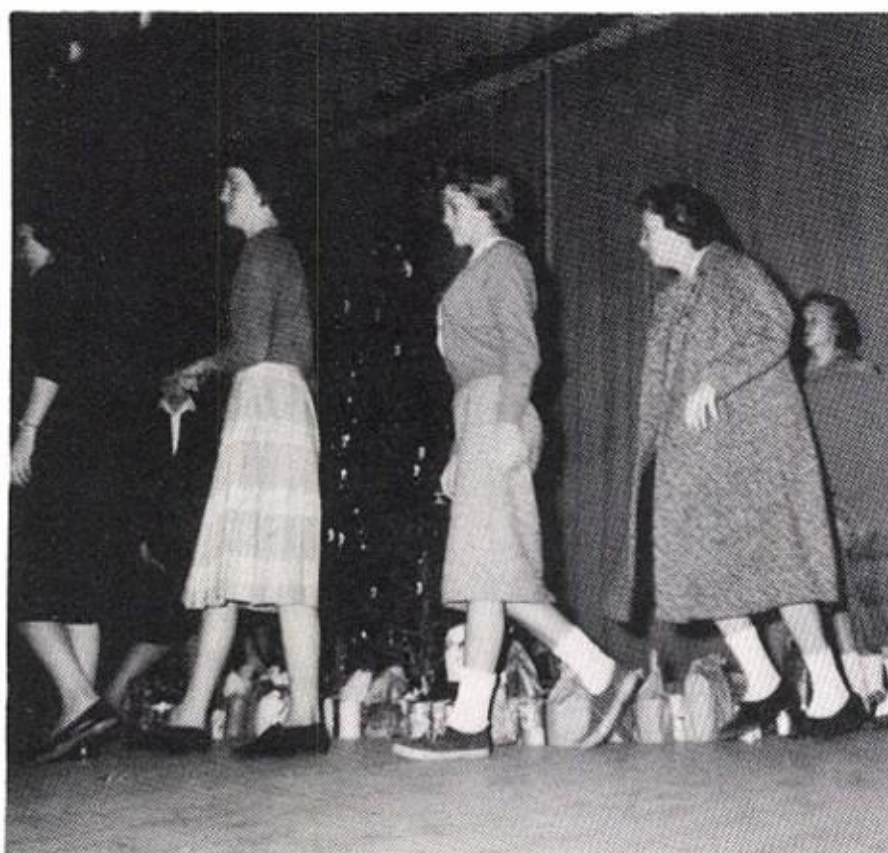

The background music for the pageant was supplied by the school chorus. After the pageant, the chorus hummed the stanzas of "Silent Night" as the students and faculty filed up on the stage and placed their gifts under the Christmas tree.

Christmas spirit at Fieldale High was certainly evident that day. This program exemplified the co-operative and generous spirit of F. H. S. students.

Ronnie Setliff, Mike Hundley, Gale Walker, and B. J. Carter look over the huge array of gifts to Christmas Cheer.

Joy Spencer, Dare Whitlow, Shirley Wright, and Nancy Hancock leave the stage after placing their gifts under the tree.

ANNE CROTTS WINS "MISS FIELDDALE" TITLE

Jo Ann Rakes, Miss Fieldale High of 1959, crowns a smiling Ann Crotts, winner of the 1960 contest, while her proud husband watches.

The words "I'll Remember April" will always be cherished by the participants of the 1960 Fieldale Beauty Pageant. This theme was carried out by adorning the stage with typical April scenery, rain drops, and miniature umbrellas.

The fifty girls added to the beauty of the pageant by wearing lovely evening gowns consisting of every color in the April rainbow.

Karen Moran, Shirley Wright, Audrea Turner, and Jeanette Setliff smile prettily for the judges.

While the judges were comparing notes, entertainment by various local talent in our community was enjoyed by all during the intermissions.

The highlight of the evening was the crowning of Ann Crotts as "Miss Fieldale of 1960" by "Miss Fieldale of 1959," Jo Ann Rakes. Sandra Merriman and Carol King were Ann's charming runner-ups.

On her first entrance, Karen Moran is escorted by Larry Steele.

Entering for the second round, Barbara Wyatt, Judy Simons and Carolyn Brown wait breathlessly while the judges take notes.

FORENSIC EVENTS CAUSE DISCOVERY OF TALENT

Miss Marie Knight
Forensic Coach

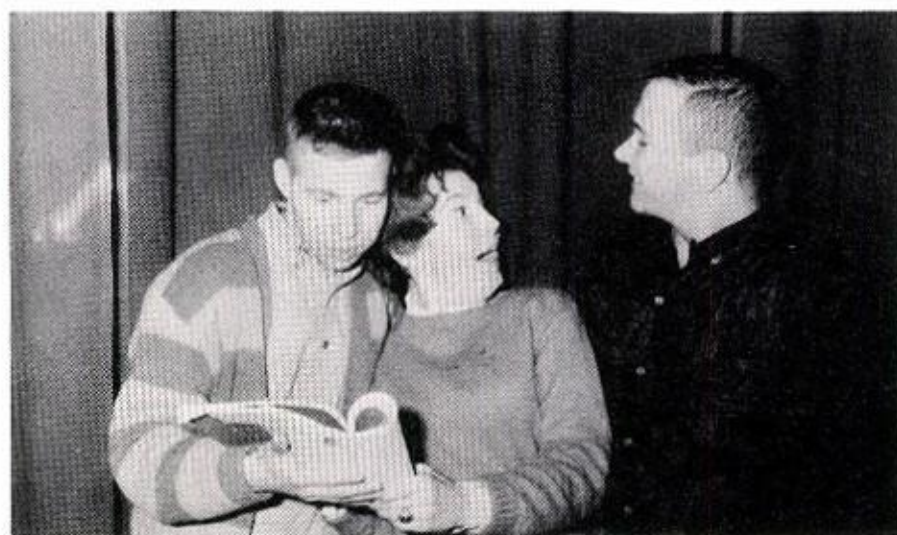

Among the five forensic events that Fieldale High entered in the Virginia High School League were prose reading, poetry, spelling, debating, public speaking, and one-act play. In all these contests, both individual representatives and member schools were required to observe all rules and regulations.

The debating contest was held at William Byrd High School, Vinton, on April 5; the one-act play at Martinsville High School, Martinsville, on March 10; and all others were held at Roanoke College on April 8.

The prose and poetry readers were required to read one prepared selection and one selection chosen by the judges.

Public speaking contestants gave an original speech of five to ten minutes in length which had never been presented in other contests. This speech had to be a subject of interest to the speaker and his audience.

"Strange Victory," by Evelyn Neuenberg, was the title of the one-act play presented in the contest. At right, Janice Joyce rehearses her lines for Gale Walker and Ronnie Setliff.

In spelling, 75 words were dictated to the contestants and twenty-five written sentences, each of which contained one misspelled word.

"MARDI GRAS" IS THEME OF JUNIOR-SENIOR

The traditional Junior-Senior Banquet and Prom, a much-looked-forward-to event, was held at the Lynwood Club, on May 6. By far, it was the most gala function of the year.

All through the evening, the students gave no thought to the future. NOW was the hour, and there would never be another like it. For the seniors, it was their final prom as high school students.

Randy Joyce, co-ordinator of the Banquet, gives the welcome to the senior class as Barbara Chard, Larry Steele, and Susie Merriman listen.

Randy Joyce, at the top of a ladder, hangs streamers and balloons while Janet Smith and Mary Ann Shires "supervise".

With a New Orleans setting, the theme, "Mardi Gras," was carried out, using a lavender and white color scheme and decorations which displayed imaginative talent by the juniors.

Candlelight shadowed the room with romantic and mystifying excitement. Adding to the enchantment of the evening, masks were provided as favors, creating an atmosphere and spirit depicting the "Mardi Gras" with all its hidden delights.

BANQUET AND PROM AT THE LYNWOOD CLUB

The banquet guests wait eagerly for the reading of the Senior Last Will and Testament.

After the Banquet, soft lights, sweet music, and a mellow atmosphere please the guests. Whether dancing or socializing, a good time is had by all.

ANNUAL SIGNING PARTY CAUSES DEEP THOUGHT

Along with the excitement of getting the FIELDCREST came the annual signing party sponsored by the Beta Club in the elementary school cafeteria. Students and teachers alike enjoyed getting together and putting in writing many memories of the past year.

Carolyn Rakes finds her knee better writing support than the table.

Gale Walker, concentrating, also enjoys a soft drink while writing in an annual.

Mrs. Jean Fuller comfortably signs annuals for her many students.

David Aderhold thoughtfully reminisces.

JUNIOR CLASS PRESENTS "DRUMS OF DEATH"

Before the performance of "Drums of Death," Irene Hedgecock, make-up artist, gives the final touch to Wanda Warden.

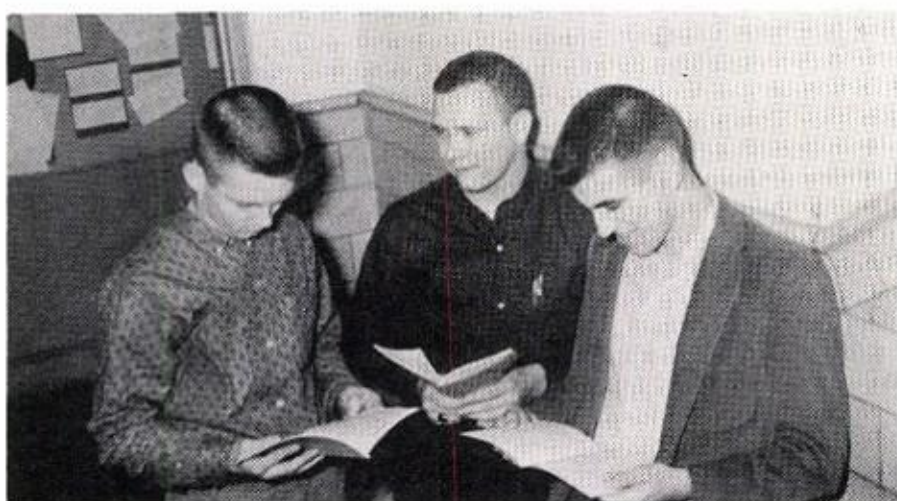

Under the expert guidance of Miss Knight, the students who were interested in drama were able to display their talents during the year.

The junior play, "Drums of Death," was presented on November 10. It was a mystery sprinkled with comedy and drew a large crowd.

Members of the cast were: Bill Morton, Mike Fulcher, J. R. May, Mary Jane Lawless, Marie Stegall, Donna Clark, Wanda Warden, Judy Simons, Selda Daniels, and Louis Eanes.

Mary Ann Gusler was assistant director; Irene Hedgecock, make-up artist; and Jimmy Crawford, sound effects man.

The senior play had not been chosen when the FIELDCREST went to the publisher. However, the members of the class and Miss Knight were making plans to present the play on April 28.

Jerry Purcell, Ronnie Setliff, and Mack Arnold study the play books to decide on the play they like best.

Donna Clark, Judy Simons, and Bill Morton practice their parts in "Drums of Death."

During rehearsal, Louis Eanes very realistically attempts to stab Marie Stegall.

THE ULTIMATE AND COVETED GOAL IS ATTAINED

With only a trace of a smile on their lips, Barbara Chard, David Akers, Audrea Turner, Jean Plaster, and Randy Joyce pause as the band begins "Pomp and Circumstance."

Shoulders high, caps straight, and everything is ready for the march down the aisle. For Iva Jarrett,

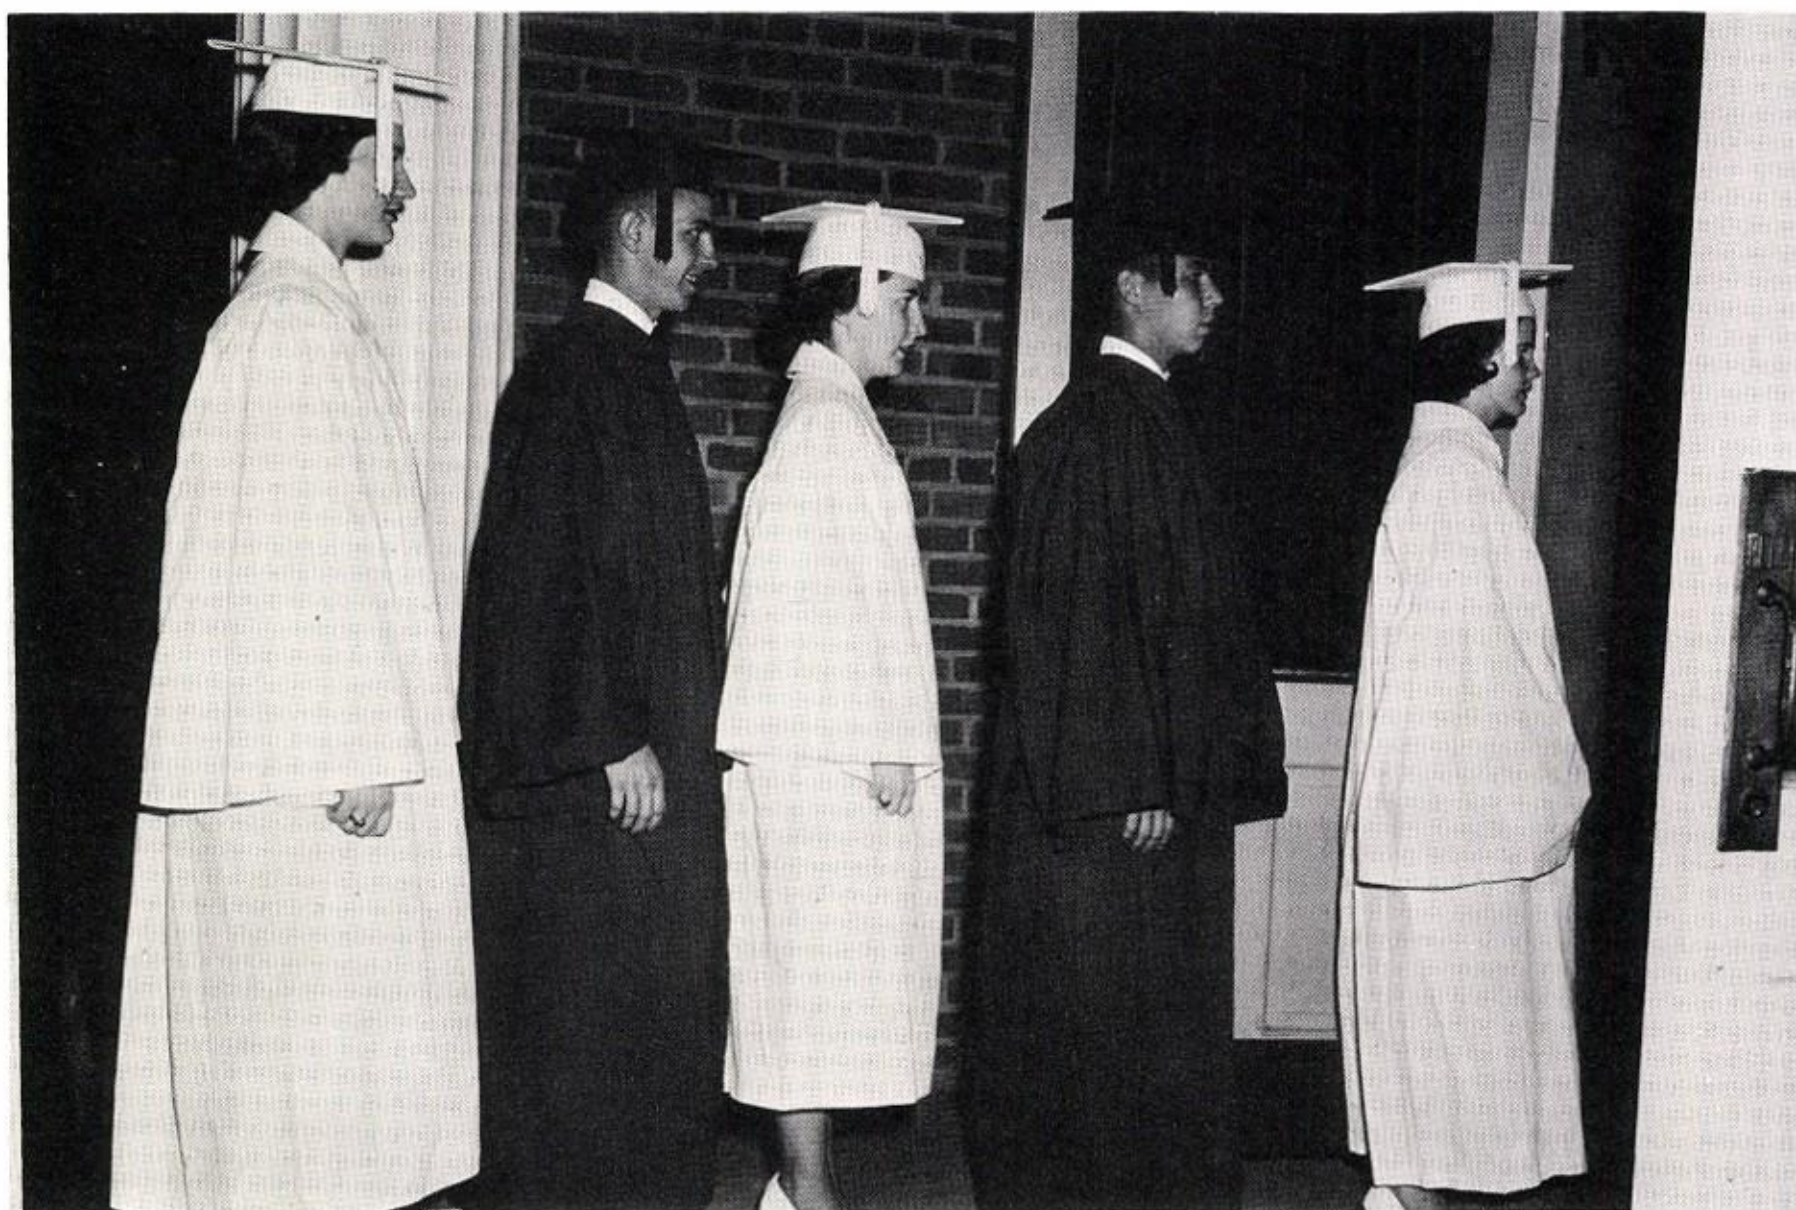

Now, the last of our one-hundred and eighty days are gone. We have attended our last class, our books are gathered up, and our lockers are cleaned. What we have made of the year can never be changed.

On graduation night and with a special kind of pride, we marched into the auditorium to be seated with our classmates for the last time. To the accompaniment of the band, we sang our Alma Mater, "The White and the Blue." With heads held high, we walked across the stage to receive our diploma. Our ultimate goal had been attained!

Then, for one fleeting moment through our mind's eye, we stole a backward glance. A sadness engulfed us, for we suddenly realized that this was the end of our high school days.

The future is ours, but we shall not forget to look back many times, remembering.

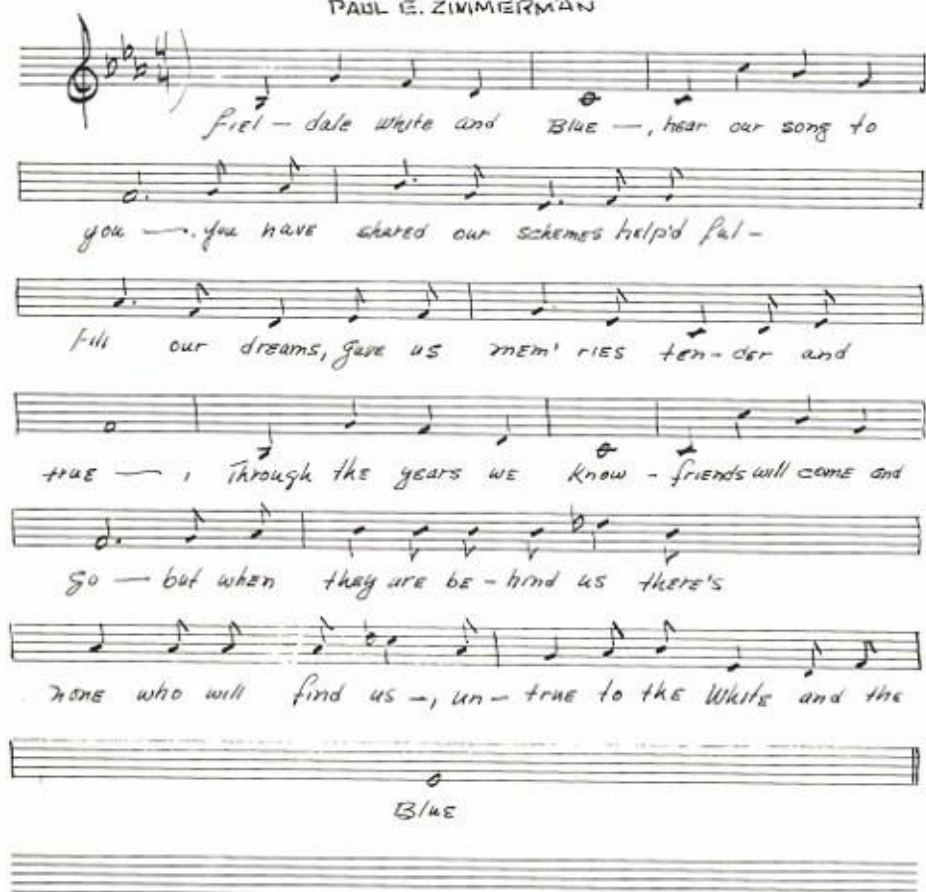

Mike Merriman, Mary Jane Pickup, Gale Walker, and Joy Smith, these are their final moments of high school.

NONE WILL BE UNTRUE TO THE WHITE AND BLUE

THE WHITE AND THE BLUE

PAUL E. ZIMMERMAN

Jean Plaster receives her diploma from Mr. Her. Thus, a twelve-year chapter in her life ends.

Graduation is over, caps and gowns are packed in their boxes, friends have gone home, and the lights will soon be turned out marking the end of this school year, 1961. But through the years, "None will find us untrue to the White and the Blue."

OUR ADVERTIZERS MAKE OUR YEARBOOK POSSIBLE

The staff of the FIELDCREST would like to say "Thank You" to all those businesses who advertised in our yearbook. Because of their generosity and their interest in us and our school, it was possible to publish this book.

On the next two pages is a list of all the advertisers, along with the page numbers of the ads. Give these advertisers your business. You will be glad you did.

The offices at Fieldcrest Mills are busy places. Several Fieldale graduates are employed in these offices.

OUR Ever-Present CHALLENGE

The prosperity and individual freedoms we enjoy today are hard-earned gifts from our forefathers and must never be taken for granted.

Each new generation must stand on its own feet and preserve these freedoms. The freedoms we enjoy through the American Way have a high price and must be earned over and over.

W. Somerset Maugham expresses it this way: "If a nation values anything more than freedom, it will lose its freedom; and the irony of it is that if it is comfort or money that it values more, it will lose that, too."
